Cummins UK Pension Plan

Pension news

For defined benefit (DB) members

Welcome

Welcome to your spring issue of Pension news, the newsletter for defined benefit (DB) members of the Cummins UK Pension Plan.

In over 100 years of pensions, things have changed a lot. Like anything over a long period of time, misunderstandings can happen and things that you thought were true might actually turn out not to be. On page 4, we're taking a look at some of the more common pension myths and finding the truth.

Also in this issue, we're focusing on your age – specifically, your target retirement age – what it is and why it matters. This is essential reading for anyone who's paid additional voluntary contributions (AVCs) and uses the lifestyle investment option. You can read more about this on page 7.

Finally, there's a change on the Trustee board to tell you about. One of our Company-appointed directors, Paul Bennett, stepped down in December 2024. We thank Paul for his service to the Plan on behalf of our members, and we welcome a new Company-appointed director, Julian Rose, to the Trustee board from 1 January 2025. Julian was Cummins' global pension strategy director for seven years before moving to a new, non-retirement role within the Company, so he'll be a valuable addition to the Trustee board.

I hope you enjoy reading this issue of Pension news and find it useful. If there's anything you'd like to know more about in a future issue, please get in touch using the contact details on the back page.

Pension myths uncovered

Is it really worth saving into a pension? Won't the State pension be enough? Can't my house be my pension? We're getting to the bottom of some common myths about pensions to find out what's what.

MYTH: pensions are complicated

It's true that pensions can sometimes be complex, but the DB Section is simple. Your employer sets it all up for you: you regularly pay money in while you work for Cummins, and when you take your benefits, you get a pension paid to you for life.

MYTH: it's not worth saving into a pension

The money you pay into the DB Section or as AVCs (up to £60,000 in a year) gets tax relief, which means the government contributes to what you save. So, every £1 you contribute only costs you 80p. If you're a higher-rate taxpayer, the savings are even greater.

MYTH: I can only pay a small amount of AVCs, so it's not worth it

Saving anything extra, however small, could still be worth it because of the tax efficiencies of pension saving.

MYTH: I'm too old to start saving

Even if you're only a year or so from taking your benefits, saving into a pension could still be worth it because of the tax advantages over other forms of saving.

MYTH: the State pension will be enough

The full State pension is currently £221.20 a week (around £11,502 a year) – which is almost £3,000 short of what you'll need for a basic standard of living in retirement, according to the Pension and Lifetime Savings Association's Retirement Living Standards. Also, you'll only qualify for the full amount of State pension if you have at least 35 years of National Insurance credits. You can find out how many years' credits you have, and if you can fill any gaps, by getting a State pension forecast.

MYTH: my property is my pension

Whether you've got one home or a portfolio of buy-to-lets which might provide retirement income, they're unlikely to be as tax-efficient as a pension. When you buy a house (or several), you're paying with money that's already been taxed. If you're a landlord, you'll be taxed on any income you earn from your properties, and if you sell your properties or die, capital gains and inheritance taxes will be due. With a pension, you don't pay tax on what you contribute, you don't pay tax on any investment growth – and you can take up to 25% of your benefits tax free (capped at £268,275) when you access them.

MYTH: my money is better in a high-interest savings account

A savings account is good, but it's not as efficient as a pension because of tax relief. You've had to pay tax on the money you put into a savings account. The amount of interest you can receive tax-free in a year is restricted, and the amount of investment growth you can achieve is limited by the interest rate that has been set. If you opt out of the DB Section, you wouldn't be able to rejoin it at a later date, and you'd miss out on increased life cover.

MYTH: my pension will be lost if I die

If you die before you take your benefits, your spouse or other financial dependants may be entitled to an annual pension from the Plan. Your AVC account can also be passed on to your beneficiaries. Remember to tell us who you want your beneficiaries to be by updating your nomination form every two years, or sooner if your circumstances change. You can do this online by logging in to your account via Manage my pension.

MYTH: I'll lose all my money if my employer goes bust

The assets of the Plan are kept in trust, legally separate from Cummins.

MYTH: a death-in-service benefit is only paid if you die on site

If you die while you're an employee of Cummins, regardless of where this happens, a death-in-service benefit is paid to your beneficiaries. Active members of the Plan are covered for up to four times their basic annual salary (depending on their section), but if you've opted out of the Plan and don't pay contributions, the benefit is one year's salary. Please note that if you're a deferred member of the Plan and no longer work for Cummins, a death-in-service benefit no longer applies.

AVCs and why your target retirement age matters

Most members invest their additional voluntary contributions (AVCs) using the Plan's lifestyle option. It's a simple way to invest, because everything is taken care of for you. You don't need to choose specific funds or make decisions about how or when to manage your investments yourself.

If you haven't chosen a target retirement age (TRA) for your AVCs, we'll assume it's age 65, the normal retirement age in the DB Section of the Plan. However, if you intend to retire earlier (or later) than this, you might want to update your TRA so your AVC investments fit with your plans.

What does the lifestyle option do?

It's an automatic process that shapes your AVC investments over the course of your Plan membership. While retirement is a long way off, your AVC savings are focused for growth to help build up your fund. Then, as you get closer to your TRA, the focus shifts towards strengthening your AVC fund to help protect it from extreme market conditions, before gradually getting everything ready for when you want to take your benefits.

Your TRA holds the key

Your TRA is the key that drives the automatic part of the lifestyle option. All the changes to your investments are based on how long you have until you retire. This means that if your TRA is wrong, you could either miss out on some investment growth by reducing growth assets too soon, or your AVC fund could be exposed to more investment risk than you would like close to when you want to take your money. Any sudden downturn in market conditions could put your AVC fund in a vulnerable position without enough time to recover. This is why your chosen TRA is crucial for the lifestyle option.

Make sure your TRA is correct and matches your plans for the future by logging in to your account via Manage my pension. You're not tied in to this and can change it if your retirement plans change.

You can also choose not to be in the Plan's lifestyle investment option and choose your own funds instead. To find out more, please see the AVC investment guide.

Plan noticeboard

Normal minimum pension age is going up

The Plan's normal retirement age is 65. If you're thinking about retiring earlier than this, please remember that the government is increasing the normal minimum pension age and this may affect your plans. From April 2028, the earliest you can access your pension is going up from age 55 to 57, unless you're in serious ill health or have a lower protected minimum pension age.

Please contact Isio, the Plan administrator, if you need to check if you have a lower minimum protected pension age or think this change might affect your retirement plans.

In the pipeline...

Following the review of the Plan's investment options by the investment sub-committee, the Trustee is preparing a new DC investment strategy for the Plan. The finishing touches are in progress, and it is due to launch in the summer. If you've paid additional voluntary contributions (AVCs), keep an eye out for more on this, as we'll be sending you the full details in the coming weeks.

Remember to register for Manage my pension

Thank you to everyone who recently registered to use Manage my pension following our reminder to those few members who still needed to sign up. It really is the best way to keep up to date with the Plan and understand more about your benefits.

Government proposals for changes to inherited pensions

In the autumn 2024 budget, the chancellor announced that the government plans to consult on whether unused pension pots will form part of an individual's estate for inheritance tax purposes from April 2027.

This could mean that pension lump sums and death benefits from a pension might no longer be passed on tax free to your beneficiaries as they'd be added to the rest of your estate – property, money, possessions, etc. – when working out if any inheritance tax is due.

The rules are complex, and the government consultation will continue throughout 2025 and into 2026 to determine if and how this new approach will be put into practice. When details of any proposed changes are confirmed by the government, the Trustee will take specialist legal advice. We'll update you in a future newsletter and on the Plan website when more information is available.

Changes to tax relief for overseas transfers in Europe

If you're planning to transfer your pension abroad to a qualifying recognised overseas pension scheme (QROPS), it will be subject to the overseas transfer charge (OTC) of 25%, unless an exclusion from the charge applies.

From October 2024, the government has removed the OTC exclusion for transfers to a QROPS in the European Economic Area and Gibraltar. Please note that transfers within this area are now subject to the 25% tax charge.

Pensions dashboards

Work on the government's pensions dashboards programme continues. However, please note that a public-access launch date is still to be announced, and it isn't expected to be until 2027 at the earliest.

The pensions dashboards will allow pension savers to view all of their pension information from different schemes in one place, including the State pension, which will help people engage with retirement planning.

The UK's pension schemes are connecting to the dashboards ecosystem in stages. This will take some time, and it won't be until November 2026 that all pension schemes have connected. We've been working with Isio, the Plan administrator, to ensure that the Plan is ready for our connection date, in line with legislation. In the meantime, we'll continue to keep you updated as more information becomes available.

Pension scams – did you hear Pauline's story?

Pauline is an NHS children's critical care nurse who has lost her entire pension savings in a pension scam. She tells her story in a special video produced by the Pensions Regulator, in which she urges others to stop, think and ask themselves whether something is genuine or too good to be true.

The scammers tricked Pauline out of £45,000, which she won't be able to get back or have enough time to earn and build up again. As she approaches her retirement age, she'll no longer be able to retire and will have to continue working at a time when she would prefer to be winding down from her rewarding but challenging career.

The details of her story highlight how easy it is for scammers to deceive ordinary, hard-working people. You don't need to have hundreds of thousands saved in your pension fund to be a target for these unscrupulous criminals – with documentation that looks genuine and offers that seem to provide solutions to some of life's troubles at just the right time, they'll steal anyone's money.

Watch the video of Pauline's story.
